

PRESS RELEASE

Barrington Hills, Illinois

10•6•2009

The International Year of Astronomy 2009 is on display all this month at the Algonquin Area Public Library District's main office, located at 2600 Harnish Drive, Algonquin, Illinois, Kane and McHenry Counties.

The Village of Barrington Hills appreciates the opportunity to display information to the patrons of the Algonquin Library.

One hallmark of IYA is education about the science of Astronomy. This is the second educational outreach undertaken by Barrington Hills through local libraries.

"We've had as much fun accumulating these mementos over the year, as putting them on display", said Robert Kosin, Director of Administration.

The display will run throughout the month of October and promote upcoming astronomical events, including the much anticipated IYA Cornerstone Project: Galilean Nights, October 22-24.

Sarah Kenney: www.barringtonhills-il.gov

Algonquin Area Public Library District: www.aapld.org

Barrington Area Library: www.barringtonarealibrary.org

Galilean Nights: www.galileannights.org